HE IS THE PEARL KING

HOW SAMUEL HARRIS OF CALIFORNIA WON THIS TITLE.

He Now Controls the Pearl and Pearl Shell Market of America and Europe. An Interesting Trade With Natives of Pacific Islands.

It is not generally known that one single merchant, a young Californian, 32 years of age, controls the pearl and pearl shell market of America and Europe. This monarch of the pearl trade is Samuel Harris. He operates in the Pacific ocean, and he has built up an astounding commercial reputation in the course of eight years. There are plenty of cattle kings in the west and wheat kings in the east and money kings everywhere, but there is only one pearl king, and that is Harris. Thousands of rare, translucent gems are brought to this country and shipped to Europe by his agents. He deals in mother of pearl shells by the ton, and the magnitude of his transactions has made the private mark of Harris—namely, a diamond inclosing a large H—a seal of international importance and a guarantee of genuine kingship.

Harris gathers his gems exclusively in the Society islands. For eight years he has made these Pacific land spots the field of his interesting business. It was on the shores of Tahiti that first he earned his title of king. After repeated transactions with the natives whom he employed in pearl fishing he stimulated them from passivity to great activity, gaining their confidence and trust by honest and reliable barter. He never made promises to them that he did not keep. He paid them in full the price which they demanded. Himself a finished critic, a connoisseur, he never permitted them to overvalue a pile of shells, and they grew to admire him. He controlled the situation at Tahiti. He was easily king.

It is said that Harris has been a lover of these delicate gems since his boyhood. Pearls have always been to him the most mysterious, the most wonderful, the most beautiful handiwork of nature. To him, gifted with an artistic, idealistic temperament, they appealed in a romantic, poetic way. To him each translucent globule seemed like a tear from the weird eyes of an earth bewitched mermaid. They were silent to him of the water maid's grief, she who perhaps pined for a terrestrial lover.

Finally young Harris took a pleasure voyage to the distant Society Isles and saw what made his enthusiastic eyes bulge in their sockets. He saw native children playing along the sands with the richest pearls he had ever seen; he saw the native belles passing by with ropes of pearly gems about their throats, such treasures as would have made a society queen turn pale with envy. Then Harris made his first business trip to Tahiti, and he took with him $3,000 worth of merchandise. His burden consisted mainly of tobacco, knives, rope, fishhooks and articles of clothing. These were luxuries to the native Tahiti, and the pearl trader brought back that year in exchange for his merchandise fully $40,000 worth of pearls and pearl shells. He did not consider it a bad bargain, and he has been back very year since.

Formerly only the lowest grade pearls were brought to the American market. The finer ones were retained abroad and rarely ever found their way this side of the water. Harris has turned the tables and now brings to the San Francisco market the most perfect pearls found anywhere. The perfect stones are orient and of translucent whiteness or glimmering iridescence. They are finely symmetrical in form, and the best are generally pear shaped, like a falling star. The hunt for these beauties of the deep goes on incessantly. The same excitement and uncertainty attend the fishing as surround the tireless chase for gold or the determined digging in a diamond mine.

There is the same labor and the oft repeated disappointment. Now and then a great surprise is brought up by the fearless pearl diver. That compensates for all the rest. Lately it was an immense black pearl, the handsomest of its kind ever snatched from the fathomless ocean. Harris brought it on his last recent voyage to San Francisco. After careful examination it was found to be absolutely perfect, having a weight of six carats. It is valued in the London market at $150.

Since 1894 Harris has revolutionized the trade in pearl shells. Only one grade ever found its way to the manufacturers of pearl shell ornaments and gewgaws. It was generally shell that was thin, flaky and colorless and sold for $800 a ton. This energetic young pearl king now exports four different grades or varieties, ranging in value from $600 to $1,200 a ton.

All shells are purchased in bulk from the native fishers. They bring down their hauls of shell to the young king's schooner as it lies in port, fretting restlessly against the side of the rude pier. They bring down their find here for the king's inspection. He sits in state and passes judgment. Harris can tell at a glance what a pile of shells is worth. He is an expert at determining value, and he is a shrewd buyer as well and has never permitted the native experts to outdistance him in judgment. When a pile of shells is dropped before him, he picks up one or two and runs his arm carelessly through the heap and in a moment can determine the grade, for the natives are clever at assortment. No uncommon shells are ever found among the poor ones. They have not learned yet the trick of deception by mingling the good and the bad.—Chicago Times-Herald.

One of the passengers on the wrecked steamer Kameruka who was saved by pigs swimming ashore with a life line ate bacon for breakfast as soon as he arrived at Sydney.—Exchange.

Baits and Where to Find Them.

Frogs are most plentiful on the shores of ponds and streams filled with plant growth and in low moist places in meadows. In searching for them in grass wait till you see one jump, then catch it in your hands. They are not so easily got from the shores as they are apt to take to the water at the first alarm.

Crabs are usually found under stones along the shores of a stream or pond, and in some localities in low moist places in grass lands. Seize the crab back of the pinchers and it cannot nip you.

Dobsons are only found under mossy stones in swift running waters. They are of a dark gray color, have many legs, and when fully grown are about three inches long. The head is shield shaped and armed with good stout pinchers, so handle the dobson as you would a crab. The best way to get a supply of dobsons is to have some one hold one edge of a fine meshed net on the bottom of the stream, while you turn over the stones above the net with a hoe. The dobsons, losing their hold on the bottom, will be carried by the current into the net. Put frogs, crabs and dobsons into a pail with plenty of grass and some water. If you are to keep them for some time, change the water occasionally.

Grubs are excellent bait for trout early in the season. They are found in partially decayed tree trunks, stumps and old timbers left in moist places. Cut into the wood with an ax, and if you find it full of holes of the size of a lead pencil knock it to pieces and pick out the grubs. Put them in a tin bait box with some of the rotten wood you found them in.—Harper's Round Table.

One of Max O'Rell's Experiences.

Once when Max O'Rell was staying at a hotel he had occasion to complain of the marked incivility and neglect of a waiter. The proprietor apologized, assuring Max O'Rell that no such complaint had ever been made before. When the waiter was reprimanded, he explained himself thus: "It's not to be expected that a self respecting Scotsman could wait on him with civility. Didn't he say we took to the kilt because our feet were too large to get through trousers?"—London Telegraph.

On the Verge of Ruin.

The tinderpest and the drought, it is said, have brought the Orange Free State to the verge of ruin. The drought has lasted for ten months and still continues. A cabbage is sold for a shilling, and there is no meat except the carcasses of worn-out wagon bullocks. Business is being wound up all over the place, and trade is almost at a standstill.

Australia is 26 times as large as the United Kingdom, 15 as large as France and almost equal to the United States.

The Trans-Mississippi and International Congress is composed of delegates from every State and Territory West of the Mississippi river. The idea of this exposition originated in that Congress at its session at Omaha in 1895, and the project has become a National enterprise and the National Commission has been organized and is in active service, there being one commissioner for each of the several departments of the Government. Most of the Trans-Mississippi States are well along in the way of gathering exhibits from their respective States and many of them have made liberal appropriations, while others are preparing exhibits through private enterprise.

Vice-President H. B. Maxson of Reno, has made arrangements whereby he can get Nevada exhibits, shipped from any point in the State, on the line of the C. P. R. R. to Omaha and return, and he requests all persons who wish the interests of the State advised, to co-operate with the Exposition County Commissioner of his county, whose name is shown above, and prepare some product of his county and send it to the point of shipment on the C. P. R. R. from which place it will be sent to Omaha and exhibited. It is to be the same point at the close of the exposition, free of expense to the exhibitor. Full information should accompany everything sent for exhibition. Before sending anything to the line of the railroad a full description should be given to the Exposition Commissioner of the county, who in turn will notify the Vice-President, who will notify him what action to take, otherwise there might be many duplications. Apply to your County Representative for further information, and don't let this opportunity of advertising the resources of Nevada be lost.

EASTERN ADVERTISING OFFICE 233

R. Katz, Agent.

OF INTEREST TO STOCKMEN.

Governor Sadler has issued an invitation to the stockmen of the State to meet at noon Monday, April 11th, at his office at the Capitol. This has been deemed necessary in view of the threatening attitude of California cattle owners who want to ship their stock to Nevada ranges. It is stated on reliable authority that an attempt will be made to ship cattle from the infected district into Nevada. This attempt, if successful, will result in placing Nevada under the ban of restriction and cattle from this State will not be permitted to enter Utah, Colorado or any of the eastern States, north of the national quarantine line. That would cut off the eastern market for Nevada cattle and result in great damage to the stock interests of the State.

Under the act of Congress to prevent the spread of contagious diseases among live stock, the Secretary of Agriculture established a quarantine line from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Nevada is outside the quarantine line and the Secretary of Agriculture telegraphed Governor Sadler that he would maintain that line so far as it concerns Nevada and would not permit cattle from the infected district to be shipped to Nevada unless the State authorities gave consent, and if they should assent to the proposition they would have to incur the risk, and have the State included in the quarantine district. The stockmen of the State are opposed to raising the quarantine, and the Governor stands by them and will not consent.

The situation is this: Feed is so scarce and stock are starving in California. The cattle are affected with the Texas tick, which produces splenic fever. This fever is contagious and in one instance in Douglas county a small band of cattle from the infected district of California caused the loss of nine-tenths of a herd of native cattle with which they came in contact.

It may seem harsh to prevent starving cattle from the quarantined district from coming into the State, but seemingly harsh measures are adopted to prevent the spread of contagious diseases among human beings. It seems inhuman to quarantine healthy persons from a fever stricken locality, but our wisest lawmakers and best physicians sanction it on the ground that it is for the greatest good of the greatest number, so it is with livestock. They may suffer in California, but if they are permitted to enter this State, it may cause the death of all the native cattle.

SOMEWHAT HYPOCRITIC.

The dispatches from Washington are conflicting. One states on reliable authority that the President's message will be a peaceable document, while another states on equally reliable authority that it will be for war. One says the Spaniards are pleading for time, and another states that the President is more desirous of getting further time than the Spaniards.

Last Friday the President asked to be given time to prepare his message, and that he would submit it to Congress on Monday. Monday came, but no message, as did also Tuesday and Wednesday. Now he wants a week, and if Mr. Reed can keep the Republican reconcentrados inside the party fence he will get it. Two, with more independence than the rest of the gang, broke out of Reed's corral and voted with the silver forces to declare Cuba free, and more threaten to follow their example to-day unless the message is forthcoming.

It begins to look as if the people were being played. The money powers are opposed to war and they control the Administration. The people want Cuba free and the Maine outrage avenged. To satisfy the money powers the President talks sweet to Spain, and, to appease the clamor for war, ships are being purchased abroad and orders are issued to move troops to the seaboard. In this way the money interests are subserved and the people who are demanding the recognition of Cuban independence are partially pacified, and it is becoming evident that if Reed can hold the House in subjection there will be no war. We have done nothing to cause Spain to declare war against us, but Spain has given the United States sufficient cause to assist in liberating Cuba, therefore, if Congress does not recognize Cuban independence it is not probable that there will be war with Spain.

HEAVY SHEEP SHEARING.

A report from Milford, Utah, says: Sheep shearing on the Oregon Short Line at Black Rock and Milford for the season of 1898 is something immense. Here at Milford the booking has already reached 135,000, with great many flocks to be heard from. The pens have been enlarged so as to set 100 shearers to work at one time. The shearing will start on April 7th and the entire month of April is filled, so that the early and late men can now pay their money and take their choice between dates. The confidence throughout the southern part of the country in the ability of the two shearing pens to take care of all the sheep of the country is well received and when the season is over more than 300,000 fleeces will have been bagged.

These will average five pounds each, making an enormous aggregate of 1,500,000 pounds of wool, which is seventy-five cars. This will be about equally divided between the Milford and Black Rock pens.

WAK NEWS.

The cruiser Cincinnati is aground at Key West.

President McKinley has requested that no action on the Spanish question be taken until Monday, when his message will be sent in.

The battleship Texas left the Brooklyn Navy Yard yesterday morning. A Hampton Roads special says the flying squadron has gone to sea.

Senator Davis announced in the Senate executive session in the afternoon that the President's message would probably not reach the Senate before Monday.

The soldiers at Fort Sheridan have received orders to move eastward to protect the Atlantic Coast or to be landed in Cuba should that be the plan of campaign.

Secretary Alger said yesterday that 200,000 volunteers could be put in the field in three days, but expressed a belief that the regular army would be sufficient to teach Spain a lesson.

The House Republican kickers are so angered at the delay that they called a caucus for last night and are indignant at the President and say they will not wait until Monday.

The Spanish volunteers have taken Havana and great rioting was reported in the afternoon. Great fears are felt for the safety of Americans. It was reported that Consul General Lee left Havana at noon.

A large number of Americans left Havana by the steamers Rache and Mangrove yesterday and the Government has sent the steamer Kingston from Jamaica to Santiago, Cuba, to take Americans to Key West.

The entire Twentieth Regiment of Leavenworth has been ordered to load property preparatory to a move East. The order to move as yet has not been issued and the destination is unknown.

Consul General Lee cabled the State Department that an American Consul is held in Cuba and cannot get away. This caused the greatest excitement in the Department. Consul General Lee also cabled that it would be impossible to get all of the Americans out of Havana yesterday.

A later cablegram from Consul General Lee stated that the 2,000 Americans in Havana cannot get away for several days and asked the President to delay his message until all Americans are removed, owing to the great excitement in Havana. Spanish volunteers are parading the streets and Spanish mobs are inciting the people to acts of violence against Americans.

President McKinley's message contains 5,700 words and is now printed and ready for transmission to both Houses of Congress. At an early hour yesterday morning crowds of people assembled at the Capitol building and the streets in the neighborhood presented a perfect Bedlam. The police had great difficulty in restraining the crowds. The French and British Ambassadors were seated in the diplomatic gallery awaiting the message with much interest. A rumor prevailed that the message of the President would be withheld until 2 o'clock in order to give Consul General Lee an opportunity to leave Havana, together with other Consuls and Americans at 1:30. This indicates that the feeling in Havana is decidedly pro-Spanish and that Americans are in danger.

Prehistoric Dentistry.

George Byron Gordon, the explorer, contributes an article on "The Mysterious City of Honduras" to The Century. The article gives an account of discoveries at Copan. Mr. Gordon says:

No regular burying place has yet been found at Copan, but a number of isolated tombs have been explored. The location of these was strange and unexpected—beneath the pavement of courtyards and under the foundations of houses. They consist of small chambers of very excellent masonry, roofed sometimes by means of the horizontal arch and sometimes by means of slabs of stone resting on the top of the vertical walls. In these tombs one and sometimes two interments had been made. The bodies had been laid at full length upon the floor. The coffins had long since mouldered away, and the skeletons themselves were in a crumbling condition and gave little knowledge of the physical characteristics of the people; but one fact of surpassing interest came to light concerning their private lives—namely, the custom of adorning the front teeth with gems inlaid in the enamel and by filling. Although not all of the sets of teeth found had been treated in this way, there are enough to show that the practice was general, at least among the upper classes, for all the tombs opened, from their associations with prominent houses, seem to have belonged to people of rank and fortune. The stone used in the inlaying was a bright green jadeite. A circular cavity about one-sixteenth of an inch in diameter was drilled in the enamel of each of the two front teeth of the upper row and inlaid with a little disk of jadeite, cut to a perfect fit and secured by means of a bright red cement.

Hicks—See that fool jump on the train before it stops. It makes me so mad!

Wicks—H'm, what d'ye think of me? I've watched that fellow do that for nearly a year, and he hasn't got killed yet.—Boston Transcript.

Britain was known to the Phoenicians as Barath-Anao, or "the land of tin," as far back as the year 1037 B. C. Some 500 years afterward the island was alluded to by the Romans under the name of Britannia, which subsequently became shortened into Britain.

THE QUICK HORSE.

An Outgrowth of Improved American Methods of Fire Fighting.

In St. Nicholas there is an article on "The Quick Horse," by F. S. Dellenbaugh, devoted to the horses of the modern fire department. Mr. Dellenbaugh says: It is only within recent years that quick horses have been developed and appreciated and admired, and the poet has not yet attempted to sing the praises of this more prosaic but noble animal. Yet, after all, to one who carefully examines the matter the quick horse appears to have quite as good, if not a better, claim upon our admiration and sympathy and encouragement. The swift horse wins the race, and in these days he may cause considerable money to change hands, in which there is certainly nothing that is commendable. But the quick horse I write about saves life, saves property and under modern conditions of life is essential to our safety and general well being. He is the result indirectly of poor building—an outgrowth of our skillful American fire departments, which could not now exist without him.

Not so very many years ago when a fire broke out everybody far and near began to run and especially began to yell, and the volunteer firemen of that time, being in the service for the excitement of it, joined in the yell and started out the old hand engine from its solemn repose, while the foreman running ahead shouted innumerable orders hoarsely through his trumpet, to the great delight of hundreds of small boys panting to keep up in the glorious race.

The fire—that was altogether a secondary matter, and when they all finally got there they went to work with more or less efficiency. There was a great deal of fun in the business, but fires were not extinguished. Our cities in the early days were not built to prevent fires, but seemed, if anything, rather built to encourage them.

In France we may well be amused as we watch the pomper corps trundle its bathtub on wheels to the scene of the conflagration and deliberately fill its apartments with water dipped up from the gutter, whence it is thrown by a little pump upon the flames, because we know much of the architecture there is solid, and if the fire is not extinguished it will soon burn itself out. But in our country a mere spark may in a few seconds become a devouring furnace and destroy house after house and block after block. Many buildings are tinder boxes, and our dry climate adds to their inflammability, while the ever present carelessness or lazy workman by improper construction gives the fire its first opportunity.

Imagination Cure.

Fuddy—Spleeney appears to be much improved in health lately.

Duddy—Yes, I cured him. I got him on to a scale the other day, and without his knowing it I managed to slip a 20 pound weight on the platform. When he saw how much he had gained, he began to be cured. In less than two days he was as well as ever he was.—Boston Transcript.

PORTEOUS DECORATIVE CO.

The Art of Lighting a Pipe.

Now, comrades, not to waste time talking of style of pipe or brands of tobacco—tastes differ in those things—try this: Keep pipe and stem as clean as possible, and the time to clean them is immediately after a smoke. Fill the bowl with your favorite brand and press down firmly, but don't strive to see how solid you can pack it. If you make it as solid as wood, it will burn like wood and make a coal fire about as hot and ungrateful. Don't light the entire surface. Don't "pull" as though you had no more matches and feared it would "go out." Light a small spot directly in the center. Smoke slowly until it works its way gradually downward. If it undertakes to spread, press it down again with thumb or finger. A half minute's care in starting is all that is required. Now smoke slowly. The little fire continues downward, delicately roasting the tobacco on the sides, and presently, when you cave this off, there will come a revelation in soft, mellow smoke, so cool, so delicious, so soothing, that you will never regret having read this.—Sports Afield.

Heat and Fuel Savers.

How long are you going to "get along" with that old cookstove that burns more fuel than a furnace and heats the outdoors more than it does the oven?

A very little money will buy one of our cookstoves—you'll save the price in fuel in one season. It will keep the heat where it ought to be, and cook your food as it ought to be cooked. Come in and examine them.

NEVADA ATHLETES.

"Adaven" Gives Some Good Suggestions to the Youth of Reno.

ED. JOURNAL.—Will you kindly allow me a few words in the columns of your paper touching athletic sports between students of the Nevada State University and different schools of California.

Up to the present time the students of the University have played several games of football or baseball, all with varying results; varying inasmuch as with each succeeding game the score has become larger on the side of the visitors. These results should not be considered as discouraging either by students or well-wishers of the Institution, but rather should act as an incentive to better work by the students and a more determined effort on the part of the public to give that assistance which will tend to bring the students up to the high standard which repeated defeats have shown must be attained to make even a fair showing with the boys of our sister State.

The severe defeat of Saturday last must certainly touch the student pride of the N. S. U., but instead of allowing it to have a depressing effect let it make the determination stronger to conquer the next time. There is certainly material enough to organize two good baseball nines, and even a third. The writer would suggest that the students adopt stringent rules governing practice and when one of the first nine fails to come up to requirements drop him out without ceremony and promote the most capable one from the nine below. This system of promotion should act as a stimulus to the second and third nines and then by diligent and persevering practice in old points of the game and introduction of new ones whenever practicable, results would undoubtedly be much different in a very short time. The writer knows from personal contact with numerous citizens of our little city that they have a feeling which, if considered, would keep them away from another game shop California boys be the opposing force. It is not a feeling of disgust, nor is it a desire to withhold moral or financial support, but a feeling of pride. It is a severe shock to the pride of an observer who is an enthusiast in athletic games, and who has the best wishes of the students of the N. S. U. at heart, to be compelled to witness the utter helplessness of our boys in the hands of the students of Nevada's University are not the superiors, they are certainly the equals of those west of the Sierra Nevada, physically and intellectually; their only deficiency being perseverance. The argument has force in football, that we are at a disadvantage owing to the heavy expense necessary in securing a first-class coach and keeping him here; the period necessary to secure satisfactory results, but with baseball this cannot be used as a reasonable one in support of the poor showing made at Saturday's game.

Wake up, boys! Instill new blood into your veins, with the firm determination to make the next California team that comes over the mountains realize that it's best sprinting efforts lie in its ability to get away from its conquerors after having met with defeat. Yours for future success.

Prepare For Any Emergency.

STATE OF NEVADA,
ADJUTANT-GENERAL'S OFFICE,
CARSON CITY, April 6, 1898.

CIRCULAR.

To the Commanding Officers of Companies A, B, C, D, E and F, 1st Regiment, N. V. G.—In view of a possible war with Spain it is especially and most urgently requested that each and all of you use your utmost endeavors to recruit your members up to 75 men liable for military duty so, as to place your companies upon a war footing in case the State is called upon for troops.

I would recommend that in all cases for the period of three months, from April 15th, that the fee required for membership be suspended and all able-bodied men between the ages of 18 and 45 years, of good moral character and physically sound, be admitted upon application and enlisted for one year or more, if the applicant so desires.

The patriotism of the young, able-bodied men cannot be shown in any manner more creditable at this time than by joining the Nevada National Guard, and by so doing will show to our sister States that, although not as large in population, our quota will be more than filled, and that in a very short time, and that the patriotism of our young men is not to be excelled by that of any other State.

Respectfully,
O. H. GALUSHA,
Adjutant-General, N. V. G.

Short in His Accounts.

Frank Helm, late County Recorder of Ormsby county, has gone wrong, being about $700 short in his accounts. It is said that his trouble came about from gambling. His father, Alfred Helm, was placed in charge of the office with the understanding that he should turn over $125 per month, of the shortage to young Helm's bondsmen until the deficit is paid. The bondsmen have settled the matter.

STATE TEACHERS' INSTITUTE.

Third Day's Session—Good Program—Grand Ball.

WINNEMUCCA, April 6.

There was a large attendance at the third day's session of the State Teachers' Institute. After the usual opening exercises Professor Winfrey of this place conducted a class exercise on Percentage. Blackboard exercise was a feature, after which a discussion followed participated in by Professors Howe, Bray and Leonard.

Mrs. Doten of Reno presented an able paper on the "Study of Literature" in lower grades. A discussion on the subject followed, in which Dr. Winship, Miss Schallenberger and Professor Kaye took part. Mrs. Doten's paper and the discussion of the subject presented were very instructive as well as interesting.

Dr. Winship addressed the Institute on "Leadership." He urged that the latent talent in boys and girls for leadership should be encouraged in various directions and when a pupil showed an especial disposition to lead in any particular branch, it was well to give encouragement and confidence would manifest itself which would aid in accomplishing the results hoped for.

Miss Howe gave a recitation in fine form and the manner in which it was received showed the high appreciation.

Professor Gayhart of Austin presented a splendid paper on "School Attainment."

Miss Howe followed with a good paper on "Elocution." The young lady being an expert in this art, she was accorded the closest attention and she gave many valuable hints to the teachers in this branch.

Miss Schallenberger spoke on "George's Junior Republic." She explained how the waifs of New York sustained a self government. Her address was something new and very entertaining. Dr. Winship closed the day program in a talk urging that teachers should be helpers and leaders.

President Stubbs of the University lectured in the evening before a large audience on "Faust." The doctor handled his subject in a manner that convinced all that he was thoroughly posted on this character of the national and popular poetry of Germany. The lecture was very entertaining and highly appreciated.

The day closed with a grand teachers' ball, participated in generally by the residents of Winnemucca and visiting teachers.

ATTENTION CATTLEMEN.

Governor Sadler Calls a Meeting of Those Interested in the Industry.

Governor Sadler has sent the following telegram to eighteen newspapers in the State. It explains itself and all cattlemen should endeavor to be present or if unable to attend in person they can send a representative, or a communication giving their ideas concerning the present cattle situation, which will receive proper consideration.

CARSON, April 6, 1898.

To Journal, Reno Nevada:—In compliance with numerous requests a meeting of the cattle owners and those interested in the protection of that industry in this State will be held in Carson city, April 11, (noon), 1898, at the Governor's office.

R. SADLER,
Lieutenant and Acting Governor.

Arbor Day Proclamation.

Governor Sadler has issued the following proclamation:

In accordance with the provisions of an act of the Legislature, approved February 10, 1897, I, Reinhold Sadler, Lieutenant and Acting Governor of the State of Nevada, do hereby designate and appoint Friday, April 22, 1898, as Arbor day, and earnestly recommend that said day be observed by the people of the State in the planting of trees and shrubs, and in the adornment of public and private grounds, and by appropriate exercises and ceremonies in the Public Schools; provided that nothing shall be construed as making this a legal holiday so far as the Courts and civil contracts are concerned.

Given under my hand and the Great Seal of the State at the Capitol, in Carson City, this 2d day of April, A. D. 1898, and of the Independence of the United States One Hundred and Twenty-second.

REINHOLD SADLER,
Lieutenant and Acting Governor.

Sugar Beets for Feed.

Sugar beets will be extensively raised in northern Colorado this year, and many farmers will use them for stock feeding as it has been found that with alfalfa they take the place of corn. Plenty of alfalfa and sugar beets will do wonders in the way of making flesh and when a little corn is used to finish with, just to give the right color, the result is the best beef produced, beef that will command the top prices in any market in the world. As many farmers desire to experiment with sugar beets, they are assured that their experiments will not be expensive, for stockmen can afford to pay $4.00 per ton for the beets to feed. The sugar factories can come later.

"Old Lavender."

Ed. Harrigan and his company, in "Old Lavender," gave one of the best performances last evening ever presented at the Opera House. The troupe deserved a better patronage although there was a fair audience. Times are too hard, the theatre too large or the town has become surfeited with entertainments and the people won't turn out.
